

User Testing

Web browser should be open to Google or some other “neutral” page

Hi, PARTICIPANT NAME. My name is TESTER NAME, and I’m going to be walking you through this session today.

Before we begin, I have some information for you, and I’m going to read it to make sure that I cover everything.

You probably already have a good idea of why I have asked you here, but let me go over it again briefly. We’re asking people to try using a Web site/app that we’re working on so we can see whether it works as intended. The tests should only take a few minutes.

The first thing I want to make clear right away is that we’re testing the site, not you. You can’t do anything wrong here. In fact, this is probably the one place today where you don’t have to worry about making mistakes.

As you use the site, I’m going to ask you as much as possible to try to think out loud: to say what you’re looking at, what you’re trying to do, and what you’re thinking. This will be a big help to us.

Also, please don’t worry that you’re going to hurt our feelings. We’re doing this to improve the site, so we need to hear your honest reactions.

If you have any questions as we go along, just ask them. I may not be able to answer them right away, since we're interested in how people do when they don't have someone sitting next to them to help. But if you still have any questions when we're done I'll try to answer them then.

Do you have any questions so far?

OK. Before we look at the site, I'd like to ask you just a few quick questions.

First, what's your occupation? What do you do all day?

Now, roughly how many hours a week altogether—just a ballpark estimate — would you say you spend using the Internet, including Web browsing and email, at work and at home?

And what's the split between email and browsing—a rough percentage?

What kinds of sites are you looking at when you browse the Web?

Do you have any favorite Web sites?

OK, great. We're done with the questions, and we can start looking at things.

First, I'm going to ask you to look at this page and tell me what you make of it: what strikes you about it, whose site you think it is, what you can do here, and what it's for. Just look around and do a little narrative.

You can scroll if you want to, but don't click on anything yet.

Allow this to continue for three or four minutes, at most.

Thanks. Now I'm going to ask you to try doing some specific tasks. I'm going to read each one out loud and give you a printed copy.

I'm also going to ask you to do these tasks without using Search. We'll learn a lot more about how well the site works that way.

And again, as much as possible, it will help us if you can try to think out loud as you go along.

Hand the participant the first scenario, and read it aloud.

Allow the user to proceed until you don't feel like it's producing any value or the user becomes very frustrated.

Repeat for each task or until time runs out.

Thanks, that was very helpful.

Do you have any questions for me, now that we're done?
